

The Story of Moss Hall

Generations of St. Mary's girls have walked through Moss Hall's door—

A place to laugh, a place to grow,
and let imaginations soar.

It's a bright and magical space
where memories live and play—

A special hall that connects us all,
each and every day.

At Moss Hall, there's always endless learning to do—

A fact to discover, a friend to meet, and a new story (or two).

Whatever you're seeking, just take a look,

Moss Hall is the place
to get lost in a book.

But before students filled
each room with cheer,

Mr. and Mrs. Moss
made their family home here.

It was a place full of love,
right from the start—

A warm little spot
that lived in their hearts.

At Walnut Grove and Perkins,
the Moss house was warm and bright—

Where color and flowers filled the air with joy and delight.

The birds would sing
a cheerful song,

And the space became a place
for all to belong.

When the Mosses moved,
St. Mary's needed a bigger home.

Their family's house became
school for girls to roam.

The library had books to explore every land,

In the old Silver Room,
for it was grand.

With pages to turn and
stories to share,

There's always room for magic,
adventure, and care.

Now, students use Moss Hall
to learn and grow—

Discovering more things
they are eager to know.

Hold on to your feathers because
that's not the ending.

St. Mary's saw that Moss Hall
needed a little mending.

Repairs and an addition made the
old building new,

And just like that, once again, our beloved Moss Hall grew.

The historic front is the same,
just as it was before.

The porch and staircase recognizable if the Mosses walked through the door.

But now there are more classrooms,
a makerspace, shiny and bright—

A room for science, a nest for babies, a library glowing with warm light.

Each girl can explore, discover, and do,
In a space that's old and also brand-new.

There's one
more chapter
we've yet to complete.

*The end of this story
could be the start of yours.*

Written by Wallis Rogin '25
Designed by Anna Osias

*This book is adapted from the "History of Moss Hall" written by the Class of 1996.
Illustrations were created by Anna Osias, cover design by members of the Class of 1996, and licensed design elements from Canva.*